Onionhead Exhibiting at American Counseling Association Conference in New Orleans

Mount Shasta, CA. (March 22, 2011) – Onionhead & Company announced today that it will be exhibiting at the annual conference of the American Counseling Association (ACA) March 24-26, 2011 in New Orleans, LA. Onionhead's programs, tools and books teach people of all ages how to care for themselves and others by dealing with their feelings in a heartfelt and truthful way. Our motto is "peel it, deal with it, heal it." Onionhead will be found at booth #333 at the New Orleans Morial Convention Center.

This year, ACA's annual conference is dedicated to the development of the counseling industry's work on current social issues including disaster mental health/trauma, grief, social media, job stress/finding jobs, sexual addiction, cyber-bullying, anger management, substance abuse and resiliency. The underlying keys to achieving change in social issues begin through positive relationships in self-love, self-empowerment and self-mastery. Onionhead will feature three new programs now available that focus on each of these keys which will be addressed through the ACA conference.

For children up to 10 years, The A-Z of Facing Your Feelings Program teaches that all feelings are acceptable, however it is what we do with them that counts -- which is the Key to Self-Love. For Tweens and Teens, the Keys & Codes to Feeling Good Program teaches how to deal with life in a compassionate, intelligent, loving and constructive way -- which is the Key to Self-Empowerment. For ages 18 and up, the Keys & Codes to Living Good Program guides us to live a more joyful, loving and respectful life -- which is the Key to Self Mastery.
